

Modern Slavery Policy

Acorn Industrial Components are a leading provider of supply chain logistics and procurement services and is committed to minimising the risk and effects of modern slavery, ethical and human rights violations across our organisation and supply chain. We pride ourselves on our sustainability and ethics, so although not legally required to provide a Modern Slavery statement, we wanted to address this issue and are working to provide adequate information.

Statement on Slavery and Human Trafficking

In accordance with the Modern Slavery Act 2015, this statement sets out the steps that Acorn Industrial Components has taken, and continues to take, to identify, monitor and remediate any issues within our business and global supply chain relating to slavery and trafficking. We understand and have a heightened awareness that slavery and trafficking exists, and the eradication of slavery and trafficking is a live and ongoing issue requiring constant vigilance.

We are committed to:

- Work in a co-operative and supportive manner with partners in our supply chain to assist, educate and train.
- Endeavour to identify potential areas of concern, addressing and resolving any issues related to this area in the best interests of the workers affected.
- Prevent exploitation of vulnerable people.
- Ensure freedom of movement and eradication of forced or compulsory labour.
- Identify and prevent human trafficking and sexual exploitation.
- Fair pay in respect of work carried out.

We recognise company environment changes is necessary in this area and are implementing changes to create more knowledge and understanding and include awareness and acknowledgement of these issues across the business, and in our employee training and development programmes.

We are committed to creating a firm foundation and policies relating to this and surrounding issues, and our future activity in this area is about establishing this strong base.
